Anti-Theft Wheelchairs

VOLUME 1, ISSUE 1

NOVEMBER 27, 2013

Combating Theft:

While you might not think of wheelchairs as being prone to theft, hundreds go missing from hospitals & from healthcare facilities across the country each year. Wheelchairs for hospitals are like a shopping cart is to a grocery store – a necessity but also a theft problem. Take a look at the number of wheelchairs that are seen in hospital parking garages. Undoubtedly these wheelchairs were used to transport a patient to a vehicle and just left behind; a seemingly innocent act that certainly leaves them as a prime target for theft. In some instances, these "thefts" are mistakes, where patients unknowingly roll out of hospitals in the wheelchairs, assuming that they are allowed to take the wheelchairs home. Others simply can't afford a wheelchair or don't want to pay for it so they take them home. Regardless of the intent, wheelchair theft is indeed a financial burden for hospitals! They are not the most expensive items in the hospital, but they tend to go missing faster than they can be replaced.

Most facilities report a 10% loss in their wheelchair fleet a year, but annual losses have topped up to 25% at some hospitals. In their absence, patient care is affected as workers struggle to move patients to and from departments with fewer chairs. To combat this theft, some hospitals now use anti-theft wheelchairs!

Anti-Theft Features:

1. A built in anti-theft pole makes the chair too tall or long and prevents loading the wheelchair into the backs of cars, SUV's and other automotive vehicles.
2. An anti-theft bar which is a device that prevents folding wheelchairs keeping them locked in their functional setting. The bars make the chairs more difficult to carry and harder to fit into the backs of vehicles. An anti-theft attendant push handle also functions as an anti-fold bar.
3. Anti-theft nuts on the fixed front riggings and fixed desk arms help ensure inventory controls preventing folding and "break-down" of the chair making them harder to swipe.
4. A Top quality wheelchair that is comfortable for patients and yet very difficult to steal!

Business Tagline or Motto

This would be a good place to insert a short paragraph about your organization. It might include the purpose of the organization, its mission, founding date, and a brief history. You could also include a brief list of the types of products, services, or programs your organization offers, the geographic area covered (for example, western U.S. or European markets), and a profile of the types of customers or members served.

It would also be useful to include a contact name for readers who want more information about the organization.

Back Page Story Headline

This story can fit 175-225 words.

If your newsletter is folded and mailed, this story will appear on the back. So, it's a good idea to make it easy to read at a glance.

A question and answer session is a good way to quickly capture the attention of readers. You can either compile questions that you've received since the last edition or you can summarize some generic questions that are frequently asked about your organization.

A listing of names and titles of managers in your organization is a good way to give your newsletter a personal touch. If your organization is small, you may want to list the names of all employees.

If you have any prices of standard products or services, you can include a listing of those here. You may want to refer your readers to any other forms of communication that you've created for your organization.

You can also use this space to remind readers to mark their calendars for a regular event, such as a breakfast meeting for vendors every third Tuesday of the month, or a biannual charity auction.

If space is available, this is a good place to insert a clip art image or some other graphic.

Caption describing picture or graphic.
